To make things a bit easier, let's say I don't want to have to create a web service just to pass the file back and forth between my app and the server. So how would I be able to move a file from my app to a server? I would like to include both an API and a backend server in the solution. A: For your needs, I guess you will need to make a http request (create and send your request to the server) to move the file to the server. Q: App start crashing when capturing frame on ios I have developed an ios app using swift where i need to capture frame of my view. My problem is, it start crashing at the point where I am capturing the frame, i mean before doing the operation on view. let layer = self.imageView.layer layer.addSublayer(light
